WEEK'S WORLD NEWS

The campaign has swung into the home stretch, with the jockeys lashing the elephant and donkey hard, fast and furiously.

Governor Smith received a tremendous ovation at Chicago, where he lashed the Republican administration for setting up what he declared was a "false picture" of economy. The Democratic candidate asserted that although taxes have been lowered under the two G. O. P. administrations expenditures have steadily increased. He cited figures from the record.

The next day Andrew Mellon, aged, conservative secretary of the treasury, hit back. He also cited figures, designed to establish the fact that the governor was wrong.

The incident was the high light of an interesting week in the most interesting campaign since 1884.

Equally interesting and pertinent in the eyes of politicians was the incident of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company. It seems that Albert H. Fall, secretary of the interior under President Harding negotiated a lease with this company, by which the company purchased oil from the government's Salt Creek reserve. The Sinclair company was the low bidder for the lease which was to have extended over a period of five years. The five years expired last January. The lease contained a clause permitting the Sinclair company to extend it over another five years if the company so desired. Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior renewed the lease last January. Last March Senator Walsh, nemesis of oil men who delve into government matters, sent to President Coolidge documents and correspondence regarding this transaction. Last week Attorney General Sargent officially declared that the renewal of the lease by Dr. Work was illegal, for the following reasons:

1—When various companies bid for the lease they bid on a five year basis.
2—When the Sinclair company received the contract the lease was drawn giving the company the option to renew.
3—Other bidders had not been informed that such an option would be written into the contract, and the Sinclair company was therefore given an unfair advantage.

Democrats attacked Work and the whole Republican administration. Gov. Smith at Chicago asked why the attorney general delayed so long in making his ruling, when any attorney could have discovered the illegality of the contract in "an hour and a half."

The arch-Republican New York Herald-Tribune demanded that Dr. Work resign as chairman of the Republican National committee. Dr. Work declared that "the people are sick of hearing about these oil transactions."

Madison Square Garden in New York will seat 18,000 persons. It was crowded to overflowing. Herbert Hoover entered the historic building. The great crowd arose, cheered long and lustily. Mr. Hoover was introduced, stepped to the microphone. Again long and loud cheers.

Said Mr. Hoover: "No man could fail to be moved by the warmth of the welcome which I have received in the home of my distinguished opponent." Tremendous cheers.

Observers contrasted this reference to Gov. Smith by the Republican candidate with the attacks made upon Mr. Hoover by the Democratic candidate.

Speaking with more emphasis than has marked any of his previous addresses the Republican candidate declared emphatically against the entrance of government into business. He attacked the Democratic proposals that the government enter into the liquor business, the power business and the farm relief business. He asserted that no democracy can remain a democracy and set up bureaucratic institutions in competition with its citizens.

This was the issue of government ownership brought once more—and clearly—to the forefront of the campaign.

Gov. Smith favors government ownership of power generating plants, the sale of liquor by states. Mr. Hoover does not. Both have spoken at length on the subject.

The conceit of Field Hickman turned yellow. He staggered up the steps to the gallows. The noose about his neck, he faints. The trap was sprung. A revolting chapter in the history of American crime came to an end. People sighed with relief.

The tallest building in the world will be built on Lexington avenue in New York by Walter P. Chrysler, motor magnate. Opposite the Grand Central Station, it will be sixty-eight stories, 808 feet high.

Benjamin Waldeman, 14 months and his 45-year old brother, Terrence, fell from the roof of an apartment building in New York to their death. They were sons of Mrs. Hazel Waldeman, heiress to the millions of Benjamin Guggenheim, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster of 1912.

Lieutenant-Commander H. C. MacDonald stepped into the cockpit of his little plane at Newfoundland. He took off, daringly headed for England. Nothing has been heard of him since. People recalled the advice of Commander Richard Byrd—that no trans-oceanic flight should be attempted except in three-motored planes, equipped with radio and life-boats.

From London comes the rumor that the Ford and Chrysler companies will unite to battle General Motors in the highly competitive automobile markets of the world. From Detroit comes word that the rumor is without foundation.

With the signing of a great contract by which the Soviet will purchase millions of dollars worth of supplies and equipment from the General Electric Corporation, Russian newspapers declare that recognition of the Soviet by the United States will shortly materialize.

Hot Reception Promised Bandits at Piggly Wiggly

Warm receptions, if not hearty welcomes, await bandits in future at the 200 stores of the Piggly Wiggly chain in Southern California. It was announced yesterday by officials of the large grocery concern.

Recent activities of hold-up men have caused the company to take drastic steps to curb steadily mounting losses from this source. In addition to frequent visits of heavily armed patrols at each branch of the company, it is planned to protect some of the larger establishments in a manner similar to that employed by many large banks, where armed guards are constantly on duty.

It was further stated by Piggly Wiggly officials that orders have been given each branch manager to keep but little cash on hand, a new system of banking having been ordered.

Heater Causes Fire Loss at Vonderahe Home

Paul Vonderahe got quite a surprise Wednesday. He went out to Charlie Vonderahe's house and came back to the office to find nobody there. Soon somebody came in and asked him how he'd like to buy a new water heater, and the conversation finally led around to the fact that Paul's house was on fire.

He didn't believe it, but a look out Carson street proved that it was. Now he's getting a big laugh out of the fact that everybody went to his own fire but him, and he sat calmly down in his office and wondered where everybody was.

The fire caught from a water heater that had been left burning for some hours. About $300 damage was done, all of which was covered by insurance.

W.C.T.U. Plans Day of Prayer

The W.C.T.U. met Oct. 19 at the Methodist church. Good attendance and increased interest is noted as the campaign draws to a close. The new song books were used.

The society agreed to send $5.00 to headquarters to be used in this campaign.

There will be an all day of prayer November 6, held in the Central Evangelical Church.

Rev. Hedrick May Remain as Pastor

The series of meetings which have been held at the First Baptist church during the past three weeks is now drawing to a close. Great interest and unflagging attendance has been the rule during the entire time.

Rev. C. E. Hedrick who has been the pastor in charge has had many splendid topics to offer, and his congregation has been so impressed with his worth that efforts are being made to induce him to remain in Torrance as pastor of the church.

Protest Cutting of Trees

It has been the custom of the city council to grant permission to remove trees in the downtown district whenever the property owner petitioned for such action. Numerous instances have arisen where property owners have sought such action, contending that the presence of the trees unnecessarily shaded their business places, and interfered with proper lighting and advertising purposes.

Street superintendent Wm. Gascoigne, who stated that he had planted most of the trees in the district under discussion, made the remark that it was his recollection that Mr. Jared Sidney Torrance, founder of the city had placed the trees in the business district as a temporary expedient to relieve the bareness of the scene, but that with the building up of the business zone that the trees were to be removed.

After the meeting Mrs. Frank Sammons suggested that whenever trees are cut down and sidewalks constructed over the parked way holes be left in the walks and cedar trees planted. City Engineer Leonard concurred in the idea and this plan may be adopted even now.

A public meeting for the discussion of the tree situation has been called by Mrs. Willis Brooks and Mrs. Frank Sammons at the Women's Clubhouse tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. City officials have been invited and anyone else interested in the tree removal question is urged to come and present his views. Mrs. Brooks stated.

Water Company Will Install Chlorinator

Plans to Add New Equipment to Booster Pump House

New improvements, costing from $1200 to $1500 will be made by the Torrance Water, Light and Power Company about November 1, according to an announcement by local officials.

A chlorinator will be installed at the company's booster pumping house on Madjid street, near Carson street. This will eliminate the undesirable odor and taste of the water, and kill all bacteria, it is claimed.

For the first few days after the chlorinator is installed, there will be a decided taste, and smell of chlorine to the water. This will be caused by running through an excess of chlorine at the beginning to clean the lines of all bacteria and growth.

However, it will last but a few days, and the water company has asked the public to be patient with them and the difference in the water will make it worth their while.

Other improvements, all of which form a big program, will follow later, water company officials claim.

THE VOTE SCORE

The first vote decrease comes in just 8 days. Now is the time to poll the winning votes. A few long term subscriptions would do wonders for some of the candidates. All candidates who expect to remain active must report Saturday night. Office open till 9 p. m.
